

In 2018 we developed and implemented three uncertainty quantification methods that can be incorporated in AC-OPF formulation. We assessed pros and cons of each UQ methods, and we identified polynomial chaos expansion to be the most promising method for its quality of UQ and potential of scalability. We also developed an active set learning based method and perform successful preliminary testing on DC-OPF